HOOKER PLANNING TO MAKE RAILROAD CARS

HUNDREDS PAY LAST TRIBUTE TO FOUNDER AND EDITOR OF DAILY

Funeral Services Held For W. R. Shelton at Central Methodist

STORES CLOSED DURING THE HOUR

Knights Templar and Kiwanians Attend in a Body

His resting place marked by banks of beautiful floral, the body of William Randolph Shelton, founder and editor of The Daily, today rests in peace beneath the sod of the community he loved so well and for which he accomplished so much during the years he labored in the vineyard.

Business was generally suspended over the two cities Friday afternoon, while hundreds crowded the Central Methodist church to pay their last mark of respect to the memory of a kindly Christian character, a man who had endeared himself to citizens in every walk and station of life. His was the love which knew no denominational or social boundaries; it encompassed everyone with whom he came in contact. Yesterday those who loved him gathered at the church and at the grave to say good-bye to his mortal remains, but the same friends will have with them, ever green, the memory of his service for others, his courtesy, his kindness and his faith that the Master above ultimately would find for us a haven where the cares would be forgotten and where peace sublime reigns.

While tears glistened in their eyes, those loving friends yesterday were lifted up with the knowledge that while his body sleeps, he is at rest with his Creator.

Knights and Kiwanians Attend. Members of the Kiwanis club and Knights Templar of this district, Mr. Shelton having been a member of both organizations, attended the services in a body. Both organizations met at the home on Sixth avenue and escorted the body to the church. Services there began at three o'clock.

The following friends were honorary pallbearers: Early Phinizy, W. A. Curry, D. D. McGhee, J. H. Calvin, B. L. Malone, E. C. Payne, W. R. Smith, W. A. Bibb, H. M. Safley, J. B. Blair and J. W. Cunningham.

Flowers banded the chancel rail of the church as the funeral party and its escort of honor filed silently into the auditorium. Sorrowing friends completely filled the building, overflowing into the Sunday school annex.

"God Knows Best," was rendered softly by the church choir, led by Mrs. H. H. Pulliam, and assisted by Miss Ruth Banks and H. R. Davis. Mrs. H. O. Troup playing the accompaniments. The pastor, Rev. J. D. Hunter, read several passages of comfort from St. Paul relating to immortality, after which Dr. W. P. McGlawn, presiding elder, led an earnest prayer. Mrs. Joseph M. Pettet tenderly sang "The End of the Way."

Sir Knights then took their silent stations by the side of the casket and the solemn ceremony of the order was read by John W. Jones, E. C. L. F. Goodwin, prelate, T. G. Mundy acting warden, W. M. Royer, generalissimo, C. L. Saunders, acting captain general, A. B. Harvey, recorder after which Dr. Hunter delivered the following eulogy.

"No word of eulogy that might fall from the lips of man could add in any way to the glory of the character of him whose memory we have met here today. Our friend and brother who has slipped away from us, has pronounced his own eulogy in the record of golden deeds and set up his own monument in the heart of humanity. The presence of this vast concourse of friends and these fragrant flowers are more eloquent than spoken words. A courteous, courtly, Christian gentleman has gone on to his reward. What a wonderful thing to be able to say about a man. Could anything better be said? I think not though you should search the literature of all ages.

Tribute Paid.

Such a citizen will greatly be missed.

RESOLUTIONS

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen proper to call our dear brother and Knight, William Randolph Shelton, from labor to refreshment in that Celestial Lodge on high, with bowed heads and heavy hearts we must humbly submit to His will. As we loved him in life, therefore we honor him in death. With his virtues engraven on our memory, we call to mind his devotion to our mystic art, his pleasant fellowship, his loving aid and loyal support. Therefore be it:

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Shelton, and Knight of the Birmingham Chapter Rose Croix, the chapter has lost one of its most honored, useful and generous brothers, his community a loyal citizen, his church a devoted and active member, his family a loving husband and father, and one whose memory will be cherished for the many kind and fraternal acts, and who was ever ready to administer to the wants of the needy. Be it further:

Resolved, That with hearts saddened because of the breaking of sweet ties of human friendship and brotherly affection, we place our wreaths upon his grave, and mingle our tears with those who are left behind. That we commit to the God of grace with our sympathy and love that inner circle of friends and loved ones whose hearts are too tender at this hour even for the touch of human sympathy, and pray that they may feel the healing touch of the great sympathizing Divine Friend; He who tempers the wind and calms the sea looks down with compassion upon those whose hearts are heavy with grief and bowed down with sorrow. Be it further:

Resolved That we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy in their loss and commend them in prayerful tenderness to Him who has the power and right to give and take away as seemeth best in His sight. While in life yet we are in death, the silver cord has loosened, the golden bowl is broken, the pitcher is broken at the fountain, and our beloved editor, brother, Knight and fellow townsman is here no more, but is gone to live in the City of God, that City not made with hands eternal in the Heavens. Be it further:

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be entered upon the record book of the Tennessee Valley Club of Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite Masons, Decatur, Ala., a copy mailed to the editor of the Camp Chronicle Birmingham, Ala., a copy to the Albany-Decatur Daily for publication and a copy be sent to the bereaved family.

HANIHARA PLANS TO ADDRESS NEW NOTE TO CLEAR ATTITUDE

Japanese Ambassador to Clarify Position on Immigration

HIS RECALL NOT EVEN CONSIDERED

Pointed Out His Recall Would Be a Serious Diplomatic Blunder

(Associated Press)
TOKIO, April 19—Japanese Ambassador Hanihara at Washington shortly will address a new letter to Secretary Hughes in an effort to clarify Japan's attitude toward American immigration legislation and expressly disavowing any intent in the use of the word "grave consequences" to imply a threat or to signify a desire to interfere in domestic affairs of the United States, the Associated Press learned today on reliable authority.

The new note, which it is known here that Hanihara desires to send, has been authorized and instructions have been transmitted him by the foreign office in Tokio.

Assurances were given today on the highest authority that the recall of Hanihara has not even been seriously considered by the Japanese government.

It was pointed out that the recall would be a serious error, amounting virtually to an admission that Japan's envoy actually had threatened the United States. Protecting that such is not the case, the government has reiterated that neither it nor Hanihara had any intention of threatening or seeking to coerce the United States in matters which Japan admits are domestic.

QUESTION SEVERAL IN FATAL FIRE CASE

(Associated Press)
CHICAGO, April 19—Samuel Moore and Leo Unell owners of sporting and novelty concerns, were in custody today for questioning by the fire attorney in connection with the blaze in which eight firemen and one civilian lost their lives last night and nearly a score were injured.

Samuel Polinsky said to have had insurance dealings with Moore and Unell was declared by the police to have had insurance policies aggregating $2,000 issued to Moore and Unell in his possession.

Polinsky also was questioned and he and Adolph Friedman are held as witnesses for the inquest as are Moore and Unell.

A porter told the police that Moore and a man named Sam left the factory at 5:35 p. m. to get the key from Unell, but that 10 minutes later Unell's son arrived with the key and that he and the watchman locked up the place. A few minutes later the watchman, who lived in the neighborhood, saw flames pouring from the building.

Bantam Hen Has Her Nest Thirty Feet in the Air

A squirrel nest occupied by its makers one year ago, located 30 feet up in a tree near an old mill place, eight miles South of Danville, in this county, is now the property of a bantam hen. At least the hen claims the last year's squirrel nest and is now setting upon tiny eggs in the nest which she has been laying for the past few weeks.

V. N. Gibson, well known here, stated to Mayor James A. Nelson of Decatur that baby chickens are expected to peep from under their mother almost any day now, and that plans were being made to bring mother and chickens to earth where they are expected to live happily ever afterwards.

MISS POINTER WINS DISTRICT MEDAL IN ORATORICAL EVENT

Popular Local School Girl Gets Decision at Sheffield

GOLD MEDAL FOR DECATUR STUDENT

Will Participate Now in State Contest for Alabama

Miss Marjorie Pointer student in the Decatur high school and popular local girl, will represent the eighth congressional district in the state contest which will determine a winner in the national oratorical contest. The winner of the state award will represent Alabama in the national meeting.

Miss Pointer won the gold medal for the district honors Friday evening when she spoke in the Sheffield high school. Two other entrants from the eighth district schools also spoke, Miss Pointer's effort being adjudged the best by the judges, two of whom were from Lawrence County and one of whom was from Tusculum.

The meeting at Sheffield was under the auspices of the high school of that city and Prof. Grubbs, a member of the faculty, presided.

Miss Pointer's subject was the "Constitution of the United States" and as she had previously done here, in winning the Morgan County prize, the speaker covered the subject thoroughly and delivered her message in splendid manner.

Miss Pointer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster H. Pointer, of Ferry street, and has a large circle of friends in the Twin Cities who confidently believe she will earn the right to represent Alabama in the national meeting.

SENATOR WHEELER FURNISHES BOND

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 19—Senator B. K. Wheeler, of Montana appeared before United States Commissioner McDonald here today and furnished bond for $1,000 for his appearance at Great Falls, Montana, to answer an indictment charging him with accepting money illegally for appearing before the interior department in land cases.

CHEYENNE, Wyoming, April 19—The Mammoth Oil company's answer to the government's suit for annulment of the lease on Teapot Oil reserve was filed in district court here this morning.

The answer contains sweeping denial of all charges of collusion and fraud contained in the government's bill of equity and asserts that the lease on the reserve is legal and valid.

FIFTEEN PERSONS EAT GLASS, ARE ILL

(Associated Press)

CHICAGO, April 19—Fifteen persons are under physician's care and Ella Redich, a house maid, is held by police while food thought to contain ground glass, served at a dinner party last night, at the home of Dr. V. C. Freedman, is being analyzed. Two are seriously ill.

The girl denied all knowledge of the food. The girl was employed at the Freedman home and was discharged because she had broken three glasses.

During the meal a son of Dr. Freedman bit into a piece of glass in a dumpling. Other persons complained of nausea.

Most of the food served at the dinner, Dr. Freedman said, had been prepared by the maid before her discharge.

TWO HUNDRED WILLING TO DO SOME DEFINITE CHRISTIAN WORK

Fully 200 people came forward to the chancel rail at the Central Methodist church revival meeting of Friday night, thereby publicly signifying a desire to do definite Christian service. In addition, there was a large number of young people who publicly stated they desired to be trained for religious work. The decisive action taken by the young people and the company of about 200, came following a powerful sermon by Dr. James D. Hunter, the pastor of the church who has done all the preaching for the two weeks revival at his church, which is to be brought to a close Easter Sunday night.

It is reported that about 20 made definite decision to accept Christ as their Savior at Friday night's meeting. It is expected that an unusually large class will be received as church members Easter morning.

High school students of both Decatur and Albany were especially invited by Dr. Hunter to Friday night service and there was a large response from both schools.

The students of the Decatur high school sang near the opening "He whispers His Love to Me." The Albany high school students sang, followed by a solo by Cy Graham: "Tell Mother I'll be there." The Junior choir sang: "Love Lifted Me." The entire congregation led by the senior choir sang "Throw Out the Life Line." Dr. Hunter announced the Easter day services, and Mrs. Joseph M. Pettet rendered as a solo "Jesus, Jesus, Sweetest Name I know."

Dr. Hunter preached on the conversion of St. Paul. Some of the epigrams of the preacher were as follows:

"All we have is our lives to invest."
"I had rather have a life, to invest than all Rockefeller's gold."

PRIDE IN APPEARANCE

AN EDITORIAL

"A man without pride is a toiler without tools." We don't remember just who made that remark, but we have a strong hunch it was good old Dr. Samuel Johnson—the same gentleman, you will recall, who compiled the first dictionary. If it wasn't the Doctor, it was someone just as shrewd.

Nobody is totally without Pride in some form or other. Even the tramp—way down at the foot of the social scale—likes to feel he can travel more miles a day, catch more box car rides, beguile more housewives into free hand-outs, and do less work, than his fellow knights-of-the-road. In short, he takes Pride in feeling that he is a darned good tramp.

After all, it can't be denied—Pride is a thing to work with. It's a tool. The man who loses his Pride has literally lost everything—his will to succeed, his pleasure in his home, his rightful place among his fellows. HE HAS KNOCKED OUT HIS LAST PROP.

There are a dozen "prides"—pride in position, pride in influence, pride in success. But at the basis of all these is Pride in Appearance. If you keep it burning—and burning strong—the other things will follow as naturally as night follows day.

Encourage your Pride in Appearance, and it will work for you. "The successful workman is the man who picks his tools," and a woman without pride does not make a successful housekeeper.

HAS NEW PROCESS TO LIGHTEN TRAIN AND BOOST LOADS

Pennsylvania Official Explains Desires of Group of Bidders

WHITE DECLARES THEY ACT ALONE

Believes Experience Justify Award of Shoals to Them

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 19—J. G. White, of New York, one of the bidders in the Hooker-White-Atterbury proposals for operation of Muscle Shoals testified today before the senate agricultural committee at today's hearing. He reiterated that no interests were involved in their proposals except the three individuals mentioned.

"I believe that the experience and the achievements of myself and my associates have been such as to insure the building up of an unusually efficient operating organization if our proposal should be accepted," White said.

"While there might be others associated with us in the future there has never been any thought that we would not retain permanently a controlling interest in this enterprise," White added.

WASHINGTON, April 19—W. W. Atterbury, vice president in charge of operations of the Pennsylvania railroad, told the senate agriculture committee today that if the Hooker-White Atterbury proposal was accepted for Muscle Shoals, that he planned to produce an alloy of aluminum and magnesium for the manufacture of railroad cars.

He claimed that with this strong, light material, that 50 per cent heavier load could be transported in freight cars and 30 per cent in passenger cars. This material was used in German zepps during the war, he added.

WASHINGTON, April 19—Advocates of the Hooker-White-Atterbury proposals had the field today at the senate committee's Muscle Shoals hearing. Two of the principals, J. G. White, New York, N. W. Atterbury, vice president in charge of the operations of the Pennsylvania railroad, and a local consulting engineer, Francis Weller, testified as to the merits of the bid.

Atterbury told the committee he was interested in Muscle Shoals on account of the cheap power available, which would permit experimenting in production of alloy of aluminum and magnesium, which would revolutionize transportation if perfected.

Weller ridiculed the Ford bid and lauded the Hooker proposals. The committee adjourned until Monday when others interested in the Hooker bid will be heard.

WILL BE CARRIED OUT

The last of Dad's earthly existence was laid away with a mighty tribute yesterday at Oakwood. It was what Dad loved during his lifetime. He cared nothing for material things—the value of money he never wanted to know. All he wished was the love and friendship of his fellowman, and if his departed soul hovered near on Friday afternoon, he was pleased, for Dad loved just those things.

Dad's policies were always straightforward, clean cut and above reproach. I do not mean he had no faults, for he was human. He met every man as an equal and treated them all honorably and squarely until they proved themselves unworthy of his trust and confidence. He was not forced to bear such a sorrow.

The management and editorial staffs of The Daily will go on in the same attempt to bring better things to the communities which The Daily represents.

His desire was to hurt none and help many. We shall try to fulfill those desires.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE URGES THE WOMEN TO VOTE

Extended quotations from the recent address of President Coolidge to the Thirty-third Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution are being used throughout the country. What the President said to the Daughters about the importance of women voting has been said many times by others and just as well, concerning the importance of the men of the nation exercising their right to vote. The President sets forth the following as a basis for his expressed belief earlier in the address, that the women can be depended upon to vote for the best interests of the country, provided they will inform themselves as to the issues of the day:

"I have absolute confidence that if American womanhood will exercise the right of franchise, after fair, considerate and mature deliberation, voting for what is right as their best judgment shows them the right, that the right will mightily prevail. Surely the womanhood of our country, who have lavished upon the sons and daughters of the land such a wealth of affection, who watch over them in every crisis, from the cradle to the grave, with immeasurable devotion, will not hesitate to make sufficient sacrifice to preserve for themselves and those they love the last best hope of the World—American institutions."

It was doubtless generally understood by the women of the convention that Mr. Coolidge expected them all to vote for him, but the President contended he was not worrying about what party they supported, just so the women voted their honest convictions.

"I am much less concerned for what party, what politics and what candidates you vote, than that you shall vote, and that your vote shall represent conviction. When an enlightened electorate acts, I have no fear of the result.

"Here in America we are living under a form of democratic-republican institutions which I profoundly believe to be the best that has yet been thoroughly tested. I say this because our system has gone so far in carefully solving the difficult problems of government. In the early development of popular institutions the executive and legislative authorities were divided . . . but not until the founders of our republic had made a further distribution and differentiation of functions, was popular government assured the opportunity to prove its case. When the judicial function was set apart and made the third independent but co-ordinating factor in the form of government the scheme of a perfected democratic-republicanism was for the first time presented to the world. That was the great contribution made by the founding fathers in our constitution. By virtue of it, the people were at last assured equality against the tyranny of any despotic executive and the tyranny of any despotic legislature. Neither of them, nor both of them together, might thereafter impose a lawless will upon a defenseless people."

For the Sabbath and Other Days
A Train Of Thoughts

By J. E. Blair

Easter leads us to gaze steadfastly up into heaven. The glorious season causes us to wonder about those Christ-prepared mansions, and if we covet the best gifts. We inquire, "Are we preparing for those prepared mansions? Such a preparation means not so much a looking for the ascended Lord as asking for His descended Holy Spirit. The first lesson in spiritual preparedness is, to come to ones self. Only those "have arrived" who, like the Prodigal son, have come to themselves. But those who seek worldly happiness, just as the Prodigal did, think not so. Not only preachers and enthusiasts on questions of "right and wrong," but just common every-day newspapers like the New York World, are saying that "arriving" is coming to one's self instead of coming into possession of wealth and power and pleasure. That paper says the world is as foolish now as was the Prodigal who wanted "something for nothing" from his old father, and also wanted to spend the inherited property in riotous living.

"The desire of the human race," says The World, "is to get something for nothing, to get rich quick, to win a place among the elect who do not have to work by some sleight-of-hand applied to finance. Some rob banks, some pick pockets and rob second stories and railroads."

Now the Holy Spirit will teach just the opposite of what the world is doing according to The World. God's Spirit will have the same effect on all who want Him, as He had on the Prodigal son. He will cause people to want to get up out of the filth of sin, and go to God the Father, just as the famished prodigal thought and said: "I will arise and go to my father." And "just as sure as preaching," those who follow the lead of the Holy Spirit will want to quit a life of mere pleasure seeking and serve God. And just as the prodigal said he would request of his father: "Make me as one of thy hired servants," so Spirit-led men would rather be "a door-keeper in the house of my God than to dwell in the tents of wickedness." Only mind you this, in closing—God will make servant-slaves of nobody! No, not by any manner of means! Instead, this Scripture will be true of all returning prodigals. "But the father said unto his servants, 'bring forth the best robe and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and shoes on his feet . . . for this, my son, was dead, and is alive again; he was lost and is found.'" ed from these walks of men. His constant thought was for his community and his fellow men. To the interests of humanity was his fine powers dedicated. Should he have had his choosing he would have been written down "as one who loved his fellow man." He will be missed in the circle of his home. What a kind thoughtful companion and father. You brethren in the fraternal circle will miss him. He was a good man and true. It will be hard to find one who could so crystallize community life and thought. As one of his business associates expressed it, "he was to us a balance wheel." We shall greatly miss him in the Central Methodist church. He was a consistent member and very appreciative listener and his presence an inspiration to any preacher.

"May" the mantle of his character fall upon his son. May the God of all grace abundantly supply comfort and strength to his companion. And may the rectitude of his business relationships ever be an inspiration and pole star to his business associates."

Members of the Kiwanis club then gathered the florals and placed them in waiting cars, after which the Sir Knights marched to the door of the church and formed an arch of steel, through which other Sir Knights tenderly carried the body of their beloved brother and through which the family filed. Pall bearers from the membership of the order were: T. A. Bowles,

Dr. J. L. Gunter, E. T. Sheppard, R. T. Sheppard, J. F. Smithers and W. W. Rahm.

The line of sorrow then was formed and the long procession moved onward to the cemetery, where hundreds of other friends had gathered. The Sir Knights and Kiwanians were formed in lines about the grave, together with the honorary pall bearers. The active pallbearers escorted the body to the grave and Dr. L. F. Goodwin, prelate of DeMolay Commandery, read the burial rites of the order. The choir sang two of the hymns which had been given at the church "Jesus Pilot Me" and "My Savior as Thou Wilt."

Mr. Shelton died Thursday morning at the Protestant hospital in Nashville. His body was brought here on the Pan-American Thursday night and was met at the train by an escort of honor from the Knights Templar and a committee from the Kiwanis club. Scores of friends also met the train.

Mr. Shelton was 63 years of age. He was born in Louisville, Kentucky, December 31, 1860. Most of his life had been spent in the newspaper business, but he was a travelling salesman several years, and for many years has been a member of the Travelers Protective Association, being one of the oldest members of Post H, local unit of the T. P. A.

Mr. Shelton is survived by his widow, one son, Barrett C. Shelton, two sisters, Miss Emma Ben Shelton, of California; Mrs. Maude S. Rudy, of Kansas City, three cousins, Guy, Paul and Miss Florence Barrett, of Frankfort, Ky., with whom Mr. Shelton made his home for some years during his early life.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Revelations of a Wife

What Did Lillian Promise Mrs. Marks?

LILLIAN slumped down in her chair as I talked, propped her elbows on her knees and cupped her chin in her hands. It was a posture as familiar to me as it was comforting, and when I had finished talking, I shaded my eyes with my hand and watched her silently until she rose from her chair and stretched her arms above her head.

"Madge, dear," she said, "will you let me take care of this situation for a little while? You are too nearly concerned to get the right perspective on it."

"If you only would," I breathed gratefully, for I infinitely dreaded the task of presenting another ultimatum to Mrs. Marks concerning the costly furs she had brought so unceremoniously to my rooms.

"That's all right, then," her accent was one of relief. Now, do you happen to know whether the gifted Pety is now resting in the bosom of his family, or is he sojourning elsewhere?"

"I am sure he is away from home," I replied. "He always is at this time."

"So far, so good," Lillian rejoined. "Now, if you'll approach the Marks' apartment and ask the chaperone to favor me with a few minutes of her improving conversation here in my living-room, I shall be most grateful. If Pety is there, you'll have to stall, and I leave that to your imagination. But if the lady is at leisure, bring her in here, and then—do you mind camping in your kitchen for a little while? I'd like to talk to the dame without even your presence."

Mrs. Marks Is Suspicious

"Of course," I said gratefully. "I'll lug my favorite small rocks and a magazine there, now, and I shall be most comfortable."

"I'll take the things there," she said promptly, "while you go on to the other apartment. Which magazine?"

Some Unusual Ideas for Easter Parties and Other Festivals

By WANDA BARTON

EASTER festivities have grown to be almost as much in favor as Christmas and New Year celebrations. Easter presents are exchanged nowadays, parties are arranged and holidays are granted in a way that almost rivals Russian Easter celebrations except that our shops are not closed. Easter festivities last a whole week in Russia. The most sacred church service is held on Easter Eve. After this service the big fast is broken. Our feast comes on Easter Day and is followed in a number of cities by a fashion parade of more or less interest.

The hot cross bun is the only food in evidence during lenten days that calls our attention to the season, unless possibly the presence of a greater supply of fish in our markets marks fast days.

The famous egg-rolling contest on the White House grounds in Washington is repeated in a few of the other cities, but in almost all homes where there are children the Easter rabbit is looked for, and the Sunday morning hunt for gaily-colored eggs is part of the Easter festivities.

Eggs may be easily colored at home by primitive means or dyes that come prepared for the purpose, which may be bought at modest prices at the drug stores. The eggs are generally hard-boiled first, then they are immersed in the various dyes. When they are colored, they are wiped over with a greased cloth to polish and bring out the appearance. Some eggs are hand-painted with bath or stencil designs, or with transfer picture motifs.

Before dyes were perfected, the eggs used to be dyed in bits of ribbon and silk with tea leaves, coffee grounds, onion skins, bits of logwood, sulphur, blueing or other make-shifts to make them old in color and design. The shrewd offer of wonderful candy eggs and other Easter egg specialties. Blown shells painted with faces and dressed to suit held up by sealing wax feet are quite a feature and children adore them. Most of the coloring is done harmlessly, so that if the children are tempted to eat their candy eggs, no bad results are likely to follow.

Easter week is a fine time for a children's party, for it is vacation week and devoted to merriment. An Easter egg party is attractive for youngsters from six to ten. The games consist of egg-rolling contests, pinning the Easter rabbit on the best, and an egg hunt to music. In the latter game the little hunters know they are "hot" or "cold" according to whether the music is low or loud. Children on the host is played like old-fashioned stage coach. There is a chair short for the number playing, they march to music and when the music stops hop onto a nest, leaving the odd child out. One chair and one player are dropped each time. When the number is reduced to two children are one nest the winner gets a prize and the loser a booby prize. Refreshments may consist of egg sandwiches, chicken, sandwiches, corn, egg-shaped cookies, pound cake and ice cream mounted on egg form.

Engagement parties and weddings are not to follow Easter, and Spring showers for the prospective bride are quite in order among the Spring festivities. The lingerie shower is a fad of the hour. The tokens may be dropped into a big inverted umbrella. Decorations of the house and table should be spring flowers.

AN EASTER REFLECTION

By Juanita Hamel

EYES cannot perceive what the soul cannot feel—they are not only its window, but its mirror. How well SHE knows! Had she not tried over and over again to bury forever all thoughts of him she was so certain she did not love? And always her eyes turned traitors—no matter where she turned, she beheld a vision of him. Now, even her mirror reflects not her own face but—his! How can she help but question at Easter: "Is this a sign? Is it he I love?"

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT American Love

Copyright, 1924, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

AMERICAN men and women don't know how to love.

And especially they don't know how to make love.

So says Madame De Pay Kull, the Swiss psycho-analyst and astrologer who has been brought to America by a rich woman to teach us how to fall in love and how to make other people fall in love with us.

Isn't it shocking, Mary, and you thought you were dead in love with your Billy, didn't you?

Isn't it outrageous, Tom, and you were sure you were one of the great lovers of the world?

Well, I'm afraid the lady is telling just a little bit of the truth—as she sees it.

Europeans, the average European, of course, I mean, love is a game, a pretty amusement designed especially to while away dreary hours on a rainy afternoon—or a dull evening.

Love to them is an adventure, a gay little romance—something as light and elusive as a bubble that floats red and blue in the sunshine.

From their point of view love does not, must not endure.

What would you care for a nice iridescent bubble if it should suddenly turn into transparent rubber and you knew you couldn't break it or blow it out to save your life, and it was bound to go floating around through the sunshine and through the rain, in and out of windows, up and down the world forever and forever?

A Different "Campaign"

You don't want chocolate creams for dinner every day, you want them once in a while for dessert or to eat when you are quite reckless and don't care for the moment whether you keep the right silhouette or not.

That sort of thing—that sort of love—is what the Swiss lecturer means.

Now our kind is different when an American falls in love with an American girl. He wants her to fall in love with him, not to play with him and laugh and run away.

He doesn't want to be tantalized, he wants to be loved and looked after.

He's going to have a hard time of it making his way in the world and keeping his head above water, and he wants his wife to help him, anyway. He wants her to love him and pretend she understands what he is trying to do.

He expects her to take a great deal for granted, and as a rule she does what he expects.

No, the average American doesn't know how to make love; he'd feel like a fool if he tried to kiss a woman's hand or write a poem to her eyebrows.

He usually sends roses because he can't think of any other flower, and every once in awhile he says the wrong thing at the wrong time.

ODD AND INTERESTING FACTS

"When the ordinary person thinks," Genevieve Panama hats are made of the bottom of the sea," says Dr. C. H. Townsend director of the New York Aquarium, in the American Magazine. "He imagines it covered with the wonderful plant life he has seen, either in reality or in pictures, covering the bed of the ocean near Jamaica or Bermuda or the southern California coast. But such wonder-soaked to make it plausible. The seaweed cannot exist without light. More than half of the hundred and forty million square miles of water on the globe is more than two thousand fathoms deep, or rather more than two miles. At that depth there is utter darkness; the visible rays of the sun do not penetrate deeper than a few hundred fathoms at the most. Consequently the greatest part of the bed of the ocean does not have any plant life what except microscopic diatoms."

Winifred Black

No, he isn't the ideal lover, or the ideal love-maker, either. Any European who can read and write can beat him at that game.

But—when it comes to marriage—give me the American first, last and all the time. He's more unselfish, more generous; more truly devoted, and more faithful than any European in his same class would ever dream of being.

The average love-making European looks upon his wife as a part of his business. She keeps his home, attends to his menage, helps him make and keep friends who will be useful to him in business, keeps the family purse, holds the family reins—and her husband amuses himself somewhere else quite as a matter of course.

Give Me a Plain American

No, no, Madame De Pay Kull, we may not know how to make love, we may not understand the art of subtle flattery, but when it comes to real love and real devotion, give me a plain American every time.

Even a Tired Business Man—at that.

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About an Attractive Daytime Post-Easter Frock.

TO my way of thinking there's nothing more effective than the new frocks which are arranged in tiers," Pam announced to me today.

"If they are on the right kind of figures," I added, "they'll be effective."

"You mean if worn by slim people only?" she queried.

"Yes," I answered, "I think it takes a slim, straight figure to really look well in the tiered frock."

"I agree with you," Pam said. "There are ways around that for the woman who realizes her figure is not quite slim enough to look well in the gown that's tiered and without a belt," I added.

"Of course," Pam agreed. "She can wear a string belt that really doesn't break the straight line of the frock and at the same time does give her enough definition of waistline to make her figure more attractive," I said.

"Well, a new model that has just come down from the workshop would be ideal for you or me, or somebody equally slim," Pam told me.

"Of course I wanted to see the model in question," I said.

"Follow me," Pam said, and led me into the manikin room.

She went to one of the racks full of gowns and drew from among them a beautiful henna shade of crepe de chine in a beautiful henna shade.

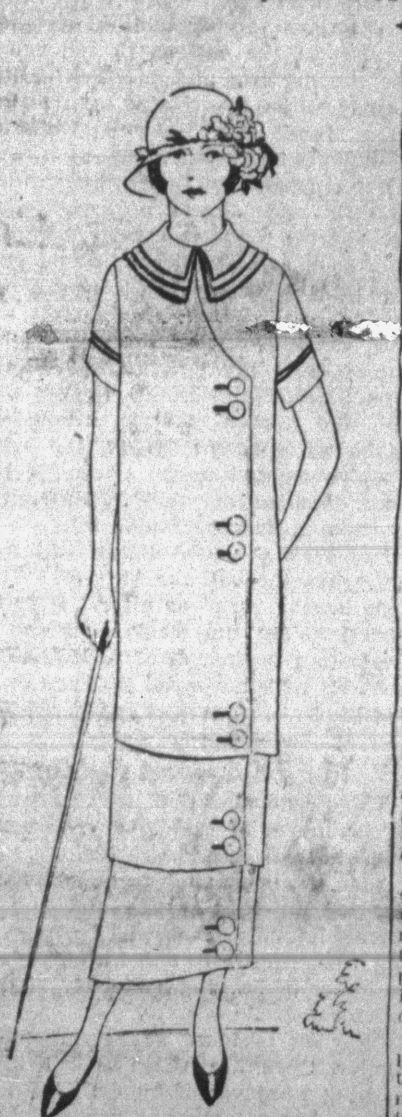

"How do you like it?" she asked, holding the model up for my inspection.

"I should like to see it on you," I told her.

"Isn't often I'll don a dress for someone who isn't a private client," Pam assured me. "But as long as you both want to see how this frock on me, I'll be obliging."

She then slipped the dress on over her head and condescendingly allowed us to fasten it for her.

"Isn't often I'll don a dress for someone who isn't a private client," Pam assured me. "But as long as you both want to see how this frock on me, I'll be obliging."

YOUR HEALTH

Never Neglect a Swelling of Glands—Avoid Adenitis

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
United States Senator from New York,
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DID you ever have "kernels" in your neck—little hard lumps that could be moved freely under the skin?

Did you consult your doctor in the beginning of the trouble, or did you let the swellings alone until an abscess formed, came to a head, broke the surface of the skin and discharged pus?

This condition is called "adenitis." When the kernels appear in the neck—which is their favorite location—the trouble is called "cervical adenitis."

This form is particularly common in children, but it may occur at any time of life, from infancy to old age.

Adenitis is an inflammation of the lymphatic glands. The function of the lymphatic glands is that of a filter for the blood. In the wonderful economy of nature they are provided to guard the body, protecting it at the first approach of disease. This they do by filtering out of the blood stream poisons that would do harm if permitted to pass into the tissues.

If you have a bad tooth with pus formation nature tries to protect you from the evil effects of the poison by filtering the disease germs out of your blood. The first sign of pus absorption may be swelling and soreness of the lymphatics. Whenever a gland becomes inflamed it should be a warning to you to search for the cause.

Among the conditions that often precede adenitis are bad teeth, ulceration of the gums or other parts of the mouth a running ear, eczema and injury to the scalp. It also follows many acute infectious diseases, such as scarlet fever, diphtheria, measles and influenza. In infancy it may be a complication of catarrhal colds.

Adenitis may be either acute or chronic. There are special types of the condition, one of which is tubercular adenitis. This was formerly known as "scrofulous glands."

Although it is quite believed that such glands may show a tubercular tendency, the presence of adenitis need not cause great anxiety. It is due to many common conditions in which pus formation is present, such as diseased tonsils, bad teeth, catarrh and ear trouble—all of them disabilities that have no possible connection with tuberculosis.

Adenitis most frequently attacks the glands of the neck, as I have said, but it also occurs in other parts of the body. The groin or the space under the arm may be the seat of the trouble.

In young children there are usually fever and other marked symptoms. Adults, however, may have no other indication of adenitis than the presence of the swelling.

Whenever such a swelling is noticed, lose no time in locating the trouble responsible for it and have that cause treated.

Scrupulous cleanliness of the nose and mouth is the best way to prevent acute adenitis. Frequent sunshine, daily baths, regular exercise and sleep are essential. The diet should be simple and nourishing, containing plenty of fresh eggs, milk and cream, green vegetables and little meat.

In extreme cases surgical procedures are sometimes necessary. The doctor will advise you about this. It will also prescribe suitable medication in every case.

Answers to Health Questions

"NAILS." Q.—My finger and toe nails break very easily. I have tried several remedies, but none has proved helpful. What would you suggest?

A.—Inasmuch as the remedies you have used did not help to improve your condition, I believe it is due to some physical condition which should be located by means of an examination. Consult your physician.

A. J. M. Q.—What causes my hands to perspire all the time? What would you advise to remedy this condition?

A.—This condition is usually due to nerve stimulation, which causes over-activity of the sweat glands. Bathe the hands with a solution of ten per cent salicylic acid in alcohol. Try to find the cause of the nervous condition.

AN ANXIOUS READER. Q.—Please advise me how to make the hair grow on the temples.

A.—It is dangerous to have the tonsils removed when one is fifty-four years old.

A.—I have had a cough for years. The trouble seems to be in the throat and bronchial tubes. What would you suggest for the condition?

A.—Send a self-addressed stamped envelope for detailed answer to this inquiry.

A.—If the person is in good condition otherwise, having the tonsils removed is not regarded as a serious operation at any age.

A.—Consult your physician for an examination of your chest and throat, to determine what causes your trouble.

Skeleton of an Embryo in One Dinosaur

Scientists, digging for fossils in the sand of the Gobi desert in Mongolia, have come upon the eggs of the prehistoric beast known as the dinosaur.

Just as the ancient egg of the boarding-house breakfast table occasionally contains an embryo chicken, so in one of these Mongolian eggs, although it was deposited by a dinosaur "best layer" 10,000,000 years ago, the pure white skeleton of an unborn dinosaur can still be seen, says London Tit Bits.

Five of these eggs were found together and within a foot or two of them crouched the huge dinosaur mother, as if she had been overtaken with disaster, probably in the form of a sandstorm of terrible violence, just as she had finished her morning laying.

The desert region of Mongolia is proving a happy hunting ground for the geologist and fossil seeker, for the high table land is almost waterless and the atmosphere is dry. Thus fossils have not been crushed out of all semblance to their original shape or pounded to pieces by water action.

It is a growing opinion among geologists that the animal dispersion took place in this region and that the dinosaur of Mongolia found its way into America, followed down the ages by the mammals, by way of the Bering straits bridge, which is supposed to have connected Asia and America.

Lighthouses in Italy to Be War Memorials

While nearly every town and village in Europe has erected memorials of one kind or another in honor of the soldiers who fell in the World war, Italy enjoys the distinction of being the first of the nations to commemorate the heroism and sacrifice of life of their sailors by erecting lighthouses.

The funds for these appropriate monuments are being raised by a committee composed of the leading Italian admirals and officers of every rank representing the navy service, together with a picked number of army generals and statesmen, says the Washington Star. Thus far $500,000 has been subscribed, and by way of beginning three great lighthouses of the purest white marble, 80 to 100 feet high and Roman in style, are in the course of construction at the most conspicuous and useful points of the coast, dominating the Adriatic, the Tyrrhenian and the Ionian seas.

The very powerful lights will cast their rays through the bars of an ancient bronze "ara" or altar. It is intended to dot the whole coastline of the Italian peninsula, of Sicily and of Sardinia with memorial lighthouses of this kind.

Efficacy of Tar Water

Rev. George Berkeley, bishop of Clove, was an ethereal philosopher who set out to undermine the stolid materialism of his time, and two hundred years ago he maintained that matter cannot be conceived to exist, the "only possible substance being mind. "The material world," he said, "is nothing but a complex of ideas which come and go with an order and coherence that constitute the law of nature."

The good bishop sometimes descended to earth to discuss the simple, mundane things. He had a curious obsession regarding the medicinal efficacy of tar water, which was much used in his time as a drink beneficial to all human ailments. "Tar water," the bishop held, "is of a nature so mild and benign and so proportioned to the human constitution as to warm without heating, to cheer but not inebriate."—Detroit News.

Shocked

"In some parts of the Orient," remarked Huffy, "a man says three times to his wife, 'I divorce you,' and the deed is done. I was telling this in a smoker and one gentleman present was horrified."

"The good man was shocked, eh?" "I don't know how good he was, but he was shocked all right. He was a divorce lawyer."

The White Weasel.
The ermine, or white weasel, is the smallest of the fur-bearers found in North America. The finest ermine fur comes from Russia and Siberia. In winter the animal is snow white except for a black tip on the end of the tail. In summer it turns brown, and the brown fur is, for this reason, known on the market as "summer ermine."

NEW ENGLAND'S LOVELIEST FAIR.

MISS BERTHE BRAGGIOTTI.

Miss Berthe Braggiotti, Boston society girl and well known dancer, has the most perfect feet in New England, according to Dr. Francis G. Donoghue, Boston foot specialist, who asserts that homely feet spoil many a love affair and cause bad tempers. Miss Braggiotti's recipe for pretty feet is to dance, perfume them, use lots of cold cream, and as a finishing touch, rouge the toe nails.

New York Letter

NEW YORK, April 19—Fashions in jewelry have now become effected by the divorce courts. The latest innovation that New York women have fallen victim to—a few of them at least—is the wearing of a cleft wedding ring to symbolize the broken bond of a divorce. From England this latest fad is said to have come, where divorce is not nearly so simple a matter as in many parts of this country, but it is being taken up very slowly on this side of the Atlantic.

The discussion as to whether women dress for the impression their clothes make on other women or on men rages anew every so often usually it is settled with a compromise opinion that we try to look our best in a general way for men but that it is before a women's audience that we worry about the details of costume. The experience of Catherine Norfleet, a young violinist of this city, would indicate the importance of that last care. She went to play before the inmates of an insane asylum recently, and on finding them all waiting her arrival impatiently, she didn't take time to change her travelling shoes to others she had brought with her which were more suitable to the dark red velvet frock she wore. That didn't seem important to her, however, considering what she presumed would be an unrefined audience. But at the close of the program, a pathetically shabby and worshipping woman, dressed in bits of many costumes, approached her and pointing an accusing finger said aloud "Brown shoes and a red dress—huh!"

A story is going about the town hearing on the agitation over Eugene O'Neill's proposed play "All God's Chillun Got Wings." This sketch deals with intermarriage between whites and negroes and so far, no actress has been secured who will act with a negro player. Some one asked Irvin Cobb what would happen in Paducah, Kentucky, his home town, if the play were produced there. "What's the name of the play?" he asked. "All God's Chillun Got Wings," he was told. "They'll need 'em, that's all," he rejoined.

Few people can resist the desire to read over the shoulder of another. We see it daily in the subways—and the habit is by no means confined to any one class or kind. But I saw the limit of embarrassment heaped upon an individual the other day for struggling to amuse himself with a newspaper that did not belong to him. He was a well dressed dignified person of that "Wall Street" look. He entered the car and looking about spied a paper lying near him. He tried to look away but his glance was drawn back to the sheet, and cautiously and unobtrusively he edged in his seat toward it, all the time glancing the other way. Finally he sneaked out a hand and annexed it and settled behind it for a comfortable ride. "Where'd ya get that stuff?" A hand as big as the voice belonging to the man seated next the busy reader reached out and snatched the paper from him. "If ya want this paper it'll cost you exactly two cents."
